Artes Orandi Nov 01 2019 Apparatus a la fin du XIIe siecle, les "artes praedicandi" sont des traites qui presentent une methode et des techniques de predication: ils enseignent les differentes facons de composer un sermon et de le prononcer. Ce genre évolue au cours du Moyen Âge en fonction du temps et du public auquel la prédication est destinée. M.G. Briscoe s'attache particulièrement aux problèmes critiques soulevés par ces textes. Beaucoup d'entre eux sont anonymes ou sont faussement attribués à des "autorités", parfois réunis en collection ou avec d'autres instruments de travail des prédicateurs. La langue employée, le latin, est influencée par la langue vernaculaire, au fur et à mesure que l'on avance dans le Moyen Âge. La tradition manuscrite et textuelle de ces traités a été jusqu'ici peu étudiée. Ce sont cependant des textes fondamentaux pour la connaissance de la rhétorique médiévale. Outre les historiens de la prédication et de sa pratique, ils intéresseront spécialement ceux qui étudient la théologie pastorale et l'histoire religieuse du bas Moyen Âge. Les "artes orandi" sont un genre littéraire qui n'a attiré l'attention des érudits qu'au XX^e siècle. C'est que le Moyen Âge ne connaît pas ce terme. On peut définir l'"ars orandi" comme un genre qui traite de la prière comme une activité requérant une stratégie verbale consciente. Et, au Moyen Âge, la prière, activité commune ou privée, verbale ou silencieuse se distingue de la méditation, toujours privée et silencieuse. Le genre a ses racines dans l'Antiquité chrétienne et va, à partir du XII^e siècle, se systématiser et se diversifier: traités qui appliquent l'analyse scolastique et les règles de la rhétorique à la prière destinée à un public universitaire, traités de prières destinés aux ordres religieux et, à partir du XIV^e siècle, des "artes orandi" destinés à la dévotion privée des laïcs. En l'absence d'un relevé des "artes orandi" conservés, B.H. Jaye en dresse une première liste non exhaustive.

Greek and Roman Military Manuals Oct 13 2020 This volume explores the enigmatic primary source known as the ancient military manual. In particular, the volume explores the extent to which these diverse texts constitute a genre (sometimes unsatisfactorily classified as ‘technical literature’), and the degree to which they reflect the practice of warfare. With contributions from a diverse group of scholars, the chapters examine military manuals from early Archaic Greece to the Byzantine period, covering a wide range of topics including readership, siege warfare, mercenaries, defeat, textual history, and religion. Coverage includes most of the major contemporary siege manual writers, including Xenophon, Frontinus, Vegetius, and Maurice. Close examination of these texts serves to reveal the complex ways in which ancient Greeks, Romans, and Byzantines sought to understand better, and impose order upon, the seemingly irrational phenomenon known as war. Providing insight into the multifaceted collection of texts that constituted military manuals, this volume is a key resource for students and scholars of warfare and military literature in the classical and Byzantine periods.

Writing Manuals for the Masses Jan 04 2020 This open access collection of essays examines the literary advice industry since its emergence in Anglo-American literary culture in the mid-nineteenth century within the context of the professionalization of the literary field and the continued debate on creative writing as art and craft. Often dismissed as commercial and stereotypical by authors and specialists alike, literary advice has nonetheless remained a flourishing business, embodying the unquestioned values of a literary system, but also functioning as a sign of a literary system in transition. Exploring the rise of new online amateur writing cultures in the twenty-first century, this collection of essays considers how literary advice proliferates globally, leading to new forms and genres.
